

Hello. This time I would like to apologise to Steve Lukather for comparing him to Lucifer, just because of his name. I did apologise a little bit, but in hindsight it wasn't enough. You can't go around comparing people to the devil! Unless of course you're one of the few people in England who have actually named their child 'Lucifer'. I make no apologies to such people as they know what they're getting into. Even if, EVEN IF the parents didn't know Lucifer was another name for Satan, it would most certainly get pointed out to those wanting to start a family very quickly. Can you imagine the talk nurses would give?? Maybe it would go something like this: 'So... I hear you're going to call your baby 'Lucifer...' You do know the devil wants to destroy the whole of religion and society? I'm just saying... I mean... it's not ok, is it? How about plain 'Luke'? That name means 'light-giving' which is nice...' Then the parent would say 'actually Lucifer means 'bearer of light' which is similar...' Then the nurse would be like 'Ha! I knew it all along! What else do you know about Satanism???'

Then the parent would say 'That's it. Now I want the baby's middle name to be '01100101 01110110 01101001 01101100'. Then the nurse would ask 'What's that mean?' Then the parent would say 'It doesn't mean anything, I just think the numbers sound cool...' Then the nurse would be like 'No, no, wait I'll just Google 'binary to English' on my mobile phone, wait a sec. Ah. It means 'Evil'. I should have guessed.' I should also mention it's possible to change your surname if you want to. How about this for a full name: 'Lucifer 01100101 01110110 01101001 01101100 War'... I do believe it's important for people to have freedom, but that's a person to monitor VERY closely. Speaking of full names, I've just Googled Steve Lukather and his middle name is 'Lee.' So what? Well, in Spain, 'lee' means 'read'. Steve reads Lukather/Lucifer, i.e. studies him. I'VE JUST DONE IT AGAIN! Steve, I am SO sorry for suggesting you study the devil or even people who sound like the devil, please forgive me, I can't stop myself!

Anyway, Mr. Lukather is American not from Spain, so the Spanish idea makes no real sense. Then again, unless his ancestors are Native Americans they wouldn't have originated from the USA, would they? For my peace of mind, let's find out where Steve's old family members came from before settling in America... I don't know if this is crossing a line a little and a bit stalker, but I've just had a look at Lukather's family history and one of his ancestors was called 'Max Lukaczer'... Is that Spanish? Maybe it means 'Maximum Satan'? Let's see if I can find out... Great news! It doesn't seem to mean anything like that, it just seems to be a random name, much like the nonsense word 'Knobelsdorff'! (Well it sounds like nonsense to me, it's just a load of letters thrown together). Now let's talk about the hypothetical person who needs to be watched constantly. I don't believe drowning babies at birth is fair at all, I've always thought that was extremely close minded of course it is, but what SHOULD be done about the child?? He doesn't have a good future, let's face facts.

Maybe he should spend his entire life in a mental home? Even that sounds a bit harsh. I've said it before and I'll say it again, there is only a certain amount of steel drum lessons one can take before snapping, and unfortunately you do get a fair amount of such activities in such places. Then again, there's something not quite right about treating the next Satan with too much kindness. Sure the guy isn't necessarily DESTINED to become super evil, but you're thinking it, I'm thinking it, he most likely would be with such parents. You know what I enjoyed in my mental home? Going to the shops! Let the baby go to as many shops as he wants, I think that's more than fair! I guess now I should say sorry to all the people out there who teach steel drums. It's just that if you're really really miserable, and someone plays you Jamaican music to cheer you up and encourages you to play some too, what the teacher is actually going to do is make someone triggered when they hear such music. But sorry anyway. Now bye!