

Ben: Hello, listeners! Today's podcast will be a little extreme as Dan has just been charged with blowing up James's house...

James: A LITTLE extreme?

Ben: Ok, very extreme. Rather intense!

James: It's more than that, Dan's gone mental!

Dan: If I'm so mental, why am I here with you now?

James: Because the justice system is mental, too and hasn't imprisoned you! At least yet...

Ben: I think you should take that back, James.

James: I'm not taking anything back, what kind of people think bombing someone is fine? I explained how you ruined the year 2,000 for me and they didn't care.

Ben: Let it go, James!

James: I'm letting nothing go. My generation was said to be the luckiest of all time as it would experience an event that almost never happens, but Dan turned it to a load of (expletive)!

Ben: Now, now, James, there's not need to swear...

Dan: Yes, what you just said was very explosive.

James: What was that?? What the hell was that??

Dan: I'm just saying what you said was very powerful. It shook me. Like my bomb shook your house.

James: You what?

Dan: I feel like I could crumble to the ground. Like your patio.

James: I'm warning you...

Dan: There's a toxic atmosphere in here. Toxic like the smoke my bomb caused.

Ben: That's enough, Dan. It's not going to make you look good in the eyes of the law...

Dan: I've stopped caring! The only real thing that's bugging me is who ratted on me??

Ben: Dan, it was me. I told the police you were planning something after you told me you were going to 'do something big to James'. Something 'next level.' I couldn't let you go through with it, Dan. You'd be throwing your whole life away!

Dan: I'll tell you something next level: Levelling James's house!

James: Yeah and the level beyond that is getting Dan arrested, which you'd THINK would be easy to do, but I guess not. Do you know what some prisoners are like? You sneeze in their faces AS A JOKE, and you never hear the end of it!! Why am I the one who gets punished?

Dan: James, I know that was hard for you, but you need to focus on the positives in life. The only one that springs to mind for you, is that you had a nice house, once.

Ben: For the listeners, would you like to explain how you live, or lived, in such a nice house with no money?

James: I spent it all on my house.

Ben: And how did you pay for your house?

James: Advertising.

Ben: All those companies you've alienated?

James: Yes. Who are sponsoring us now?

Ben: Timmy's TNT company.

James: Now that's in bad taste...

Dan: It's not just money we're getting paid, I've been given a lifetime's supply of explosives.

James: A lifetime? For you? What is that, a few megatons?

Dan: Something like that. Which is why England is now the most dominant military force in the whole world...

James: Because of you? Is that really what you're saying?

Dan: Yep. No one in their right mind would even think of messing with England now.

James: Where are you keeping all the TNT?

Dan: It's a secret.

James: Oh. What do you have a special bunker that almost no one knows about?

Dan: Yep.

James: When did you become so shifty, Dan?

Ben: Well?

Dan: There's nothing shifty or weird about the secret services storing enough explosives for you to destroy a city.

Ben: Come on... I mean... Maybe a little?

Dan: No.

James: YES THERE IS!!!

Dan: Oh, so it's now you who is snapping?

James: I'M NOT SNAPPING, I'M SHOUTING BECAUSE I'M HAPPY! What are you going to blow up next? Maybe a small island? The Isle of Man? Is that your next target? Because no one would ever think of retaliating, right??

Dan: I'm not going to blow up the Isle of Man, James.

James: What will blow up then? You must have your eyes on something, otherwise why would your lifetime supply be so huge??

Dan: Now that your house is gone? Not sure...

Ben: Dan, all this talk of bombs and bombing people. Do you think maybe this podcast may be attracting the attention of the CIA?

Dan: What do you mean?

Ben: I'm just saying, mobile phones can pick up the words people say so that adverts are more personalised. What YOU'VE said however, is a bit more... terrorist...

Dan: Moving on, who here likes jelly babies? I do.

James: Is that you trying to come across as friendly?

Ben: James has a good point, now you just sound like a terrorist who like jelly babies...

Dan: I've made things worse?

Ben: I think you have made yourself look more creepy, yes.

Dan: You don't think I'm creepy do you, James? It would hurt me a lot coming from you...

James: Brilliant! Dan... you're flipping cree...

Ben: Stop it, James, Dan's going through a tough time right now.

James: HE'S going through a tough time? Do you have any idea how easy it is for burglars to just enter my house and steal all my things?

Ben: You're huge supplies of salt, you mean?

James: That salt is MINE! At least it was!

Ben: Now you can't have any more of your special parties where you, in your words 'dominate water' by absorbing it with salt?

James: Yes!

Dan: And you still think of me as weird, James?

James: Yes!!

Dan: Well... I guess I've truly hit rock bottom.

James: You've hit rock bottom, you're aggressive and have enough explosives to kill millions. Well that's just great, isn't it?

Ben: Come on, Dan isn't going to kill anybody...

James: He blew up my house!

Ben: James, technically speaking you've actually destroyed more of Dan's property over the years than Dan has ever destroyed your stuff...

James: But he did it all at once! It took me by complete surprise, it was much harder to prepare for!

Dan: Would it make you feel any better if I told you when I'm planning on bombing the rest of your house?

James: No...

Ben: And on that ominous note, we're all out of time! Bye!

James: No, Dan hasn't finished!

Dan: Byeeeee!